

Dear Educator/Families:

Reading Is Fundamental (RIF) supports reading in the classroom and at home. To support reading wherever a child is, RIF offers a free, digital book resource site, Literacy Central at www.rif.org/literacy-central, to provide educators, families, and volunteers with a variety of fun and engaging reading resources tied to the books children love. Literacy Central offers free activities, games, reading passages, videos, and more to complement many classic and popular children's books.

A few tips you may find useful in using Literacy Central:

1. Register on Literacy Central at rif.org/literacy-central.
2. Choose one of the pathways "Parents", "Educators" or "Volunteers" to begin exploring resources.
3. Review the reading activities, featured resources, and monthly activity calendars for activities to do with children in school and at home.
4. You can search by title for a specific book and, on the search results page, you'll see filters that help you narrow your results by age group, reading level, resource type, themes, and more.

Don't see resources for a favorite book? Don't worry – RIF adds new titles every day. We hope you'll start exploring the free literacy resources today!
Happy reading!
